BUILDING RESILIENCE – Better mental health is good for everyone

Mental health is as important as our physical health. If you broke your leg you would go to a doctor for help. Yet we take less care of our mental health especially when we may feel down, depressed or are experiencing more severe difficulties.

If you are feeling down or anxious, lacking interest in your life and relationships, and finding it difficult to cope with everyday living and the normal stresses of life then you may need to seek advice or support from your local health or community services

The first port of call for some people looking for support is their G.P. If you do not have a G.P. contact your local Health Centre, some of which are listed on the back page of this leaflet.

Seeking support or talking to a professional can help you and your family to deal with depression or other mental health difficulties. As with physical health issues there are steps which you can take to improve recovery from mental health issues.

Asking for support or help is always the first step. When you seek help and begin to understand how you are feeling, coping with anxiety, stress or depression becomes easier.

BUILDING RESILIENCE - Steps which can help you everyday!

Remember:

- It is always possible to feel good and regain your confidence
- Write a list of the things that you enjoy, make you feel 'good' and boost your energy. Read your list every day.

Look After Yourself:

- Share your worries and concerns with someone close to you – your family, a good friend, a work colleague, GP, Priest or Minister,
- Learn to know the early warning signs which make you feel low, anxious or stressed
- Stay involved with activities and people who can help you feel less anxious or depressed
- Eating wholesome food regularly and keeping physically active will support your wellbeing and positive attitude towards life

Being Yourself:

- Focus on the strengths within yourself which will help you cope with life's pressures
 - Plan realistic goals for yourself
 - Smile, it will make you feel better and will attract more positive responses from others
- Do not be afraid of experiencing anxiety, low moods or depression

THERE IS ALWAYS SOMEONE AVAILABLE TO LISTEN AND SUPPORT

See overleaf for listings of local supports and helplines. Types of support can include reducing isolation by getting involved with your local community in some way. County Wicklow Partnership (email: info@wicklowpartnership.ie) has information on community groups, events, training and workshops.
